Additional Note by PAG 07/18/2025 04:52 This installation is a Hydro-Mechanical Grease Interceptor aka: (HGI). The Description of this particular system must be changed to HGI and not to confused with a Gravity Grease Interceptor (GGI).

By Definition per the Principal Changes to the ICC California Plumbing Code 2007 edition: Sections 1014.2 and 1014.3 the 2006 California Plumbing Code states: the term Grease Trap now is officially referenced and referred to as Hydro Mechanical Grease Interceptor aka: HGI and Gravity Grease Interceptor (GGI)

Typically HGI's (for smaller demand) are used inside the building and GGI's are for larger demand and used outside the building building for easier maintenance for larger demand.
